

THE JOHNSTON MACHINES

and implements, are the outgrowth of practical experience. We have been taught what are the best materials to use in the building of these implements; what construction gives the best results under different conditions of soil and climate; what parts must necessarily be made stronger and heavier than others. All to the end that every purchaser of a Johnston Machine is assured that he is not only getting the worth of his money, but that his machine is as near perfect as fifty years of experience, the best materials, and skilled workmanship can make it. We commend to you these JOHNSTON MACHINES.

Saturday, June 27, Mrs. E. C. Crandall will entertain the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Mrs. Myrta Youngs, county president, will give echoes from the state convention.

By a majority vote the state supreme court of Illinois decided that the legislature of that state did not go beyond its constitutional powers in granting the right to women to vote for all statutory offices.

The decision of the supreme court means, in the language of another, "That Illinois women have the unquestioned right to vote for presidential electors and for all statutory offices, as specifically provided in the 1913 act."

"That they have the undisputed right to vote at all local option elections and upon all public policy questions which are not constitutional questions."

"That the election officials in Chicago were within their powers in designating women judges and clerks of election."

"That women are now full fledged members of political parties, and as such entitled to vote for committee men and to serve as such."

"That the election officials in Chicago must proceed to re-district the voting precincts to care for the 300,000 women voters who have been added to the list of qualified voters."

"That women have the right to be candidates for these offices for which they have the right to vote under the 1913 act."

Oh it is usually coming! The right of Michigan women to vote. Let us prepare for it long before we are granted that privilege.
